A Cable Scheme

NEW YORK, November 27.—An Ottawa Out special to the Post says: It is said in well informed circles that Sanford Fleming's scheme of a Pacific Australian cable will at once assume tangible form and that the new company who will carry out the work will be incorporated during the coming session of parliament. Among those mentioned as directors and heavy shareholders are Sir George Stevens, baronet, Sir John Macdonald, A. Smith, Erastus Wiman, Sanford and leading English financiers. The capital stock is to be $10,000,000. It is proposed to raise $5,000,000 in 5 per cent shares and $5,000,000 in 4 per cent ... secured by ... colonial guarantee divided as follows: Canada $75,000, Australia $110,000 and Great Britain $70,000. It is proposed to give a rate from London to Vancouver Islands of 12 cents per word and four shillings per word from England to Australia, press rates to be one-fourth of regular rate.

Supreme Court Decision

WASHINGTON, November 29.—A decision was rendered by the U. S. supreme court to-day in the bond case of Moses R. Crow against the township of Oxford, Sumner county, Kansas. This was a suit to recover the amount due on certain bonds and coupons issued by the township of Oxford to aid in the construction of a bridge across the Arkansas river. The same bonds have already been once before this court in the case of McClure against Oxford (p. ... U. S. ...). The court then held that the bonds if issued under the special act of the legislature of Kansas, approved March 1, 1872 were invalid. In the present suit an attempt was made to sustain the validity of the bonds by alleging that they were issued under authority of a general act of the legislature of Kansas, passed March ... 187... The court holds that the bonds on their face excluded the possibility of their having been issued under the latter act. Public records show proceedings were not taken under that act, and the auditor had no right to decide as a matter of law that these bonds which he was authorized to register and certify were ... of law they were not. The decision of the court below in favor of the township is affirmed. Opinion of Justice Blatchford.

Secretary Whitney Accepts Bids for New Cruisers

Irish Commoners Defying the Government

Philadelphia Labor Organizing for City Election

The New Navy

WASHINGTON, November ...—The secretary of the navy to-day accepted the following bids for the construction of new cruisers and gunboats: Cruiser No. 2 (Charleston), Union Iron works of San Francisco at $1,017,000; cruiser No. 3 (Baltimore), Cramp & Sons of Philadelphia, $1,...,000; gunboat No. 2, the Columbia Iron Works & Dry Dock Co. of Baltimore, at $247,000. In the case of gunboat No. 1 no decision has yet been reached as between the bid of Reeder & Sons and the bid of Cramp & Sons. Although the Union Iron works of San Francisco put in the lowest bid on Cruiser No. 1 (The Newark), yet as the figures exceeded the maximum amount fixed in the appropriation bill the secretary was unable to accept their bids. He will probably refer the matter to congress with a statement of facts and recommend that the appropriation for the construction of Cruiser No. 1 be increased or that the government be authorized to build the vessel at one of the navy yards.

Sunday in Ireland.

SLIGO, November 28.—The nationalist chiefs held a private meeting in the town hall to-day, and discussed their future course of action.

Messrs. O'Brien and O'Kelly, members of parliament, went to Riverston to address a meeting. A platform was erected, and the chapel bell was tolled. Mr. O'Brien made a speech in which he denounced the government and declared that the Irish would be able to overcome ... unworthy schemes for repressing opinion. The police threatened to arrest him but although he defied them he was not molested. Mr. O'Brien then went to Ballysodare where the priest ... to a ... He persisted however and the meeting was dispersed by the police.

Mr. Thomas Mayne, the member for Tipperary, defended boycotting. A government reporter guarded by constables, was present, and noted the proceedings of the meeting.

Commoners Maurice, Healey, Hoper, Lane, Fox and Shea spoke at the meeting at Killeagh. They all declared that the government could not terrify them, but their speeches were generally moderate and guarded.

Coercion in Ireland

DUBLIN, November ...—Lord Mayor Sullivan has summoned a meeting of citizens of Dublin to assemble next Friday to protest against "The government's tyranny towards the Irish national league."

John Dillon will defend himself in the case brought against him by the government. Right Hon. Hugh Holmes, attorney general of Ireland, and John G. Gibson, solicitor general, will conduct the prosecution against Dillon.

Decision Against the Western Union

MEMPHIS, November ...—The United States circuit court decided to-day a case against the Western Union Telegraph company of interest to the public. A creditor at Memphis telegraphed to his lawyer as follows: "A. B. owes $100. If grounds attach." This was not delivered, and another dispatch was sent by another creditor to the same lawyer. An attachment was made and money made but only enough to pay the second creditor. The first creditor sued the Western Union and the court held the company for the debt, Judge Jackson delivering the opinion saying that the dispatch disclosed on the face of it its importance. The first creditor sued for non delivery of his message, and the court etc.

The Point Sable life boat went out, but when ... yards out the flag went to the masthead. The life boat attempted to turn and was capsized. The crew clung to the boat which did not regain an upright position but drifted ashore. Three of the crew lost their lives. Captain Wynn and Orrin Hale died from exposure and John Smith was caught under the boat and drowned. The schooner kept on her course.

The Poe Tragedy

LOUISVILLE, November 29.—A Courier Journal special says: Five arrests have been made for complicity in the murder of the Poe family in Knox county, Ky. There is no longer any doubt that eight persons were murdered. Mr. B. M. Mitchell, brother of Mrs. Poe, admits that such has been the case, and says the perpetrators will soon be arrested. The husband is insane and not capable of attending to the matter himself, but the people of Knox county have taken the affair in hand and are vigorously investigating every clew.

The French ministry had another narrow escape yesterday in the voting of colonial credits. In spite of the premier's appeals the vote on the Tonquin credit was uncomfortably close.

The Irish are working themselves into a fever over the government's inauguration of repressive measures. Members of parliament lead in expressions of defiance and threat. From present indications the Parnellite vote will be reduced on the meeting of the commons in February.

Thoebe is preparing to make a strong fight for Carlisle's seat before congress. His hopes are based on the importance of the labor vote and the necessity of propitiating the five or more members who were elected by that element, more than on his ability to show that he received a majority of the votes cast.

Secretary Whitney has accepted the bids for the construction of two new cruisers and one gunboat. Apparently there was not a great desire to obtain the contracts for the cruisers, as the successful bid in one case was placed at the limit fixed by the authorizing act, and in the other but little below it.

The state board of canvassers met yesterday and completed their work as regards the vote for regents and for senators and representatives. For the first time the complexion of the lower house is known. The senate will have a clear republican majority of ten, though of the senators chosen this year the republicans elected but two more than the democrats. As these members vote for a United States senator in 1889 the democrats have an advance equipment almost as strong as their opponents. In the house the republicans have a bare majority of one, which will make the election for the speakership embarrassing to a modest candidate.

Russia is in a pitiable state at present. There is a deficit of 200,000,000 roubles in her finances, which is declared to be a material result of the war of 1877. Russia's irritation against Bulgaria and the perplexities of his empire have driven the czar into a state of chronic nervous irritability and he has threatened to expel several members of his family for meddling with dynastic affairs. To add to his woes his eldest son, the heir apparent to the throne, is dying of consumption, and the physicians attending him do not dare to reveal their opinions. These, together with the constant dread of assassination, make the czar's lot anything but a happy one.

The second trial of Alderman McQuade has begun. The prosecution will try New York justice this time with the general public barred out, though it does not appear that their presence had any effect in bringing about the unexpected result of last week's trial. The city press and some of the jurymen make Recorder Smyth's charge responsible for the disagreement. He practically threw out the evidence of the informers, while the testimony of Reilly and O'Neil, who will be tried for the same offence, was allowed to have full weight. The New York Tribune explains the result in the following: "Out of twelve men, sworn to try this case on the evidence, nine of them watched the coil fasten about the defendant, heard the revolting story of his knavery, waited in vain for him to dispel the gathered blackness, and then calmly voted to cheat the law and block the wheel of retribution when it had only just started. It is impossible to find an explanation of this in the theory that these nine jurymen were as guilty as the man they were trying. They were simply a lot of dull persons, devoid of a high conception of duty, incapable alike of analyzing intricate evidence, and of comprehending the atrocity and danger of the crime they were there to punish. They were just such men as our present law encourages cunning lawyers to obtain as a jury. The full responsibility for this catastrophe cannot rest, however, on the jury alone. necessity compels us to place a part of it upon the shoulders of Recorder Smyth. The recorder is fitly considered a fearless and an honest judge. He stands as a bulwark between the city and its criminal classes. But he fell far short of his duty just at a time when he should have been most alive to his obligation, and most careful ... that neither [illegible] nor error on his part should contribute to its defeat. He tried McQuade on the same plane as he would try a petty offender. He seemed to lose sight of the [illegible] of bribery, and of the [illegible] to which it subjects the people. He failed to [illegible] the jury to that light and the conception of their duty which should have been correctly kept in [illegible]. "Zeb" Vance at the Circus.

Washington Gossip in the Philadelphia Ledger.

It is rarely that a circus and a United States senator run up against each other, but such a thing occurred down in North Carolina a day or two before election. It happened that one of the small road circuses of the south struck Wilkesborough, Wilkes county, N. C., one day, and found, to the horror of the manager, that the town had been billed for a grand democratic mass meeting, with Senator Zebulon B. Vance as the great attraction. The circus had had a hard summer, and the proprietor thought when it reached its native heath in North Carolina it would strike it rich. But the proprietor was nearly panic-stricken when he saw the flaring democratic posters and heard the people talking about the great anti-civil service senator who had more relatives in positions under the United States government than all the other senators put together. After thinking over the matter for a long time the proprietor concluded to go see Senator Vance, and see if a combination of the two shows could not be made. So he called on the senator and found him—as everybody else has—good-natured, jolly and pleasant. The proprietor mentioned his fears to the senator, and said that he feared the opposition.

"Yes," replied Senator Vance candidly; "I am something of a circus myself, especially as I give a free show, and I am afraid I will hurt your business."

"Then don't you think it would be of great benefit to us both if you would address the crowd from the circus ring under my tent, and on top of the lion's cage?"

Senator Vance thought for a little while, and then concluded that it would be a good joke, and so he consented. The proprietor of the circus concluded to cut the price of admission down to 25 cents, so every one could come.

Just before the show began, and a great crowd had collected about the door, Senator Vance made his way toward the entrance; but before he got there he was somewhat startled to see the clown mounted on a chair outside the door and hear him exclaim:

"Step this way, ladies and gentlemen! Here is the greatest show on the face of the globe! Not only is the show in itself a whole continent of wonders and an aggregation of talent never before collected together under one name, one roof or on one stage, but it presents to-night an additional feature. Step right up, ladies and gentlemen; do not be afraid. The lions are caged and the monkeys are harmless. As I remarked, we have an attraction to-night which eclipses all the wonders of heaven and sinks into oblivion all the freaks of earth. This great feature, ladies and gentlemen, is a real, live United States senator, who will address the crowd from the top of the lions' cage! Step right up, ladies and gentlemen! Tickets only 25 cents! We have reduced the price one-half so all can see and hear the great anti-civil service reform senator, Zebulon B. Vance! Step up! Step up! Step up, and don't be bashful!"

The senator thought he had better go in before he heard any more and he did. The clown still continued his harangue and was the means of filling the tent. After the regular show the lion's cage was drawn out into the ring. A step-ladder was placed beside it and three chairs on top. Then Senator Vance mounted this rostrum and delivered his speech.

Colonel Quay's Pluck.

From the Pittsburg Dispatch.

Colonel Quay's presence in the city calls to mind the last occasion when he bore that title into active service and carried $31,000 in a haversack. He was colonel of the 134th. In the fall of 1862 he had a severe attack of typhoid fever. He survived, but was so broken and enfeebled in health that the surgeon declared that he would not be fit for duty again during the term of service of his regiment. He was accordingly mustered out about the 1st of December, 1862. He remained with the army, however, quartered in the surgeon's tent and under treatment while settling up his regimental accounts. The men of his regiment had just received their first pay since August, and almost all of them gave it to Colonel Quay, knowing he was going home, to take to their families. Some of them had received their bounty money at the same time, and the sum intrusted to his keeping amounted all told to $31,742. The surgeon came into his tent one morning and said: "You've got to go to the hospital. This army is going to move and there is going to be a fight." Quay said he wouldn't go to the hospital. If there was going to be a fight, he was going into it. The surgeon insisted and Colonel Quay finally appealed to General Tyler, commanding his brigade, declaring that he was going into the battle. If he couldn't command his regiment he would go in as a volunteer. General Tyler told him he was a fool, that the exposure alone would kill him, in his feeble state of health.

"All right," said Quay. "I would rather die a fool than live a coward."

General Tyler finally yielded, and gave Quay an appointment on his staff to serve during the engagement. But there was the money, the $31,000 of the men's pay. There was no safe place to put it, and the men wouldn't take it back. They said it was pretty certain some of them would be killed, and the money was safer on the body of a staff officer than with them. "You keep it," they said, "and if you get knocked over, we'll take you out of the field." There was no help for it and so he packed 131 greenbacks in a haversack, strapped it about his waist, carried it through the battle and afterward brought the money home and distributed it among the wives and families of his men. The battle was the sanguinary struggle of Fredericksburg. The 134th was in the hottest of it, and many a dollar of the money Colonel Quay carried in the haversack came home as a bequest to the widow and the orphans.

NATURE'S REMEDY.

DISEASE CURED WITHOUT MEDICINE.

We take pleasure in announcing that we have secured the agency of the celebrated Dr. Clark Electric Magnetic Belt, patented October, 1884, and which is without doubt the best electric belt ever made. It has points of advantage over all other belts, that its advantages over them all only be understood by comparing one product carefully with the other. Dr. Clark's, highest, best, THE Electric Belt of to-day, as it contains as marked improvements in Electricity for self-treatment as to-day's telephone does over the one of six years ago. That these distinctive facts is conceded by the U. S. Government in their recent patents to us, and improvements are therefore unnecessary. This belt will infuse the current into the spinal column, which is the grand nerve centre of the body, and also gives direct currents to the Stomach, Liver, Sexual Organs, or any weakened or diseased part, thus permeating every part of the body, and will positively cure Nervous Debility, Pains in the Back, Hips or Limbs, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Kidney and Bladder Diseases, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, all Weakness of the Sexual Organs, Piles, General Ill Health, etc. Electric Suspensory for men free with every Belt.

We have never found that every buyer of an Electric Belt wants the BEST MADE, and it is therefore to the interest of sufferers to call and see this famous belt before buying, as it costs no more than the inferior old style, is perfectly stronger and more lasting currents, and is indestructible. We warrant it to last for years and whole family can wear same belt. It is lighter and more convenient to wear than any other. TO MEN suffering and personal weakness we especially recommend it, and will be glad to give the highest private references as to what it has done and is doing. Admiral Porter's Report

W[illegible] November [illegible] Admiral [illegible] has submitted his annual report [illegible] the navy. He says that [illegible] by [illegible] [illegible] than that of one [illegible] He considers it of vastly more [illegible] the construction of [illegible] vessels, which are now all up at City Point.

"We require for the navy," the admiral says, "the following classes of vessels [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] to show that [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] 4000 [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] The vessels of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] speed [illegible]

The chief [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] carrying [illegible] guns. [illegible] [illegible] take [illegible] [illegible] powerful [illegible] but [illegible] It is said that the European powers have built [illegible] with [illegible] regard to future uniformity, [illegible] be difficult [illegible] make [illegible] formation of battle. The United States is making mistakes of the same character by building so many different classes of vessels at the outset without knowing whether any of them will meet the requirements of the present day. No nation, he says, can dispense with forts but it is better to depend upon the navy to protect our coast. Instead of maintaining such an all force of iron [illegible] as we have at present. Every year we should construct three or four double turreted monitors, no matter if we do not build any cruisers in the meantime.

Admiral Porter says he has seen enough of torpedoes to know that 200 or 300 pounds of gun cotton exploded under a ship no matter what her size [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Yankee ingenuity [illegible] is stimulated by the prospect of sufficient reward, will no doubt soon give us a superior torpedo. He commends the Ericsson torpedo [illegible] to fire such a torpedo [illegible] is the fastest vessel in the world, something the torpedo destroyers cannot overtake. The report treats of the reorganization of the different branches of the navy, and especially of the navy department. This reorganization he holds must take place sooner or later.

The admiral takes strong grounds in favor of the government encouraging the private shipyards of the country by giving them all the work possible to enable them to improve their plants so that in time of war they can aid the government in building and dispatching vessels. He [illegible] [illegible] government [illegible] from shipbuilding yards.

Gladstone's Programme

LONDON November [illegible] Gladstone declines every request to speak until parliament reassembles. He has sent letters to several of his colleagues stating his programme for the coming session. He approves an immediate [illegible] to the government to state its Irish policy in the debate upon the address, although he expects the [illegible] will maintain [illegible] to the government. Afterwards he will assist in a effective settlement of the procedure question.

Western Competition

WASHINGTON November [illegible] A committee of the executive [illegible] of St. Louis appeared to day before General Upshaw, assistant commissioner and submitted an argument in favor of removal to St Louis of the Indian supply warehouse now located at New York city. The commissioner has received application from several other western cities to be heard on the question of removal.

The New Stamp

WASHINGTON November [illegible]—The design for the new [illegible] stamp [illegible] to be put [illegible] January next has been [illegible] [illegible] of the [illegible] [illegible] department [illegible] [illegible] the head of George Washington [illegible] [illegible] blue tinted background.

The Markets

"I believe I [illegible] [illegible] person" said the editor wearily.

"Well I've just got news from Nebraska where he is living that he is going to run for the legislature. Now [illegible] give him a blast [illegible] lift him out of his boots. Don't spare him on my account."

The editor shook his [illegible] and the news gatherer retired.

Next day he came up [illegible]. "My little item was crowded out. At least I didn't see it in the paper. I brought you some more news [illegible] about a cat as follows:

'A [illegible] [illegible] The family cat of our worthy and distinguished fellow-townsman Smith who keeps the boss grocery store [illegible] Ward No 1 (beer always on tap) yesterday became the mother of five singularly marked kittens. This is not the first time this [illegible] of [illegible] has taken place. We understand Mr Smith is being favorably spoken of as a candidate for alderman.'"

The editor groans in his spirit as he lights a cigar with the effort. It is not long before [illegible] at Smith [illegible] going around saying [illegible] he has made the paper what it is, but it is not [illegible] enough to suit the public.

Many readers will say that this sketch is overdrawn but thousands of editors all over the country will lift up their right hands to testify that they are [illegible] acquainted with the guilty party.
